Effect of blocking ACE2 on the anti-inflammatory activity of Ang-(1-7) in lung inflammation. Ang-(1-7) has been reported to exert a protective effect against inflammatory injury in lung. It is also reported that both ACE2/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis and angiotensin II type 2 receptor (AT2R)/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis play an important role in regulating inflammation. However, it is still unknown whether and how Ang-(1-7) and ACE2/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis influence AT2R/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis. To explore whether Ang-(1-7) and ACE2/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis have a synergistic effect on regulating inflammation. An acute lung inflammation animal model induced by cigarette smoke was used to study the effect of Ang-(1-7) on lung inflammation. In vivo and in vitro experiments were performed. In the in vivo experiment, Ang-(1-7) showed a significant inhibitory effect on lung inflammation. By contrast, Ang-(1-7) lost its anti-inflammatory effect when combined with the AT2R antagonist PD123319. In vitro experiments showed that the PD123319 significantly increased Ang-(1-7) production. These findings suggest that ACE2/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis plays a protective role in lung inflammation via an independent way. However, AT2R/Ang-(1-7)/Mas axis is involved in regulating Ang-(1-7) production in an Ang-(1-7)-independent manner.Q: Linux Bash Shell Script - Display only the last lines of an output I want to display only the last 5 lines of a output. I can't use tail because it will display all the output and I'm restricted to use only a bash script. A: Something like this? last 5 lines from /proc/loadavg. from the command ps ax #!/bin/bash num_lines=5 head -n $[num_lines] /proc/loadavg > last_5.txt 82157476af
